Prince of Wales Public School Celebrates New Playground

Students at Prince of Wales Public School will happily be attending school on Sunday, September 9. Instead of developing their literacy skills or working on math manipulatives, the students will be trying out their new playground for the first time.

The event, which is open to all community members, features a free BBQ lunch from 11:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m., face painting for kids, and a raffle and nickel sale. A highlight of the event will be a special performance by magician Ken McCreedy.

The Prince of Wales playground features two play structures; one for primary students and one for older students in the junior and intermediate grades.

Primary students will love the money bars, the three different slides and the climbing apparatus, while the intermediate students will be wowed by the rock climbing set-up, ropes and sliding poles.
